MEDICAL.

THE UNFORTUNATE.
REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,
623 KEARNEY STREET, COR. COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

[G]IBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his old office, 623 Kearney street, corner of Commercial, [San Fr]ancisco, where his old patients and the public [can avail themselves of] his services may find him. [The D]octor has spared neither time nor money to find out new remedies, and has returned with improved facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.
[Ho]w many thousands of persons both male and female are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, [having] thus absorbed into the system! Look at the emaciated and disfigured faces and broken-down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. [In this] horrid situation thousands suffer until death ends the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, etc., [attend] to those who are suffering with any of these [terrib]le, life-destroying maladies—see that they are [treated] and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who makes private diseases his especial study for years, [and wh]o is certain to cure the most inveterate case without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is [due] to those who are afflicted, or to those interested in the welfare of their friends [to beware] of the many pretended doctors who [infest the plac]es, publishing their skill in curing all diseases [in a few] days, imposing upon the public by using names of eminent physicians from Europe and elsewhere. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of some [charlat]ans.

Seminal Weakness.
[Semin]al Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse, solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, practiced by the youth of both sexes to an alarming extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, [such as sallow co]untenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, [blunted] intellect, loss of confidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, [loss of memor]y, hectic flushes, pimples and blotches about the face, furred tongue, [fetid breath], consumption, night sweats, monomania, [and frequently] insanity. If relief be not obtained [imm]ediately, either in person or by letter, and [a] cure effected by his new and scientific method [of cur]ing this disease, which never can fail to effect a quick and radical cure. Dr. Gibbon will forfeit [Five Hundre]d Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Married Men,
[Or those] who contemplate marriage, who are suffering [und]er any of these fearful maladies, should [consult] the sacred responsibility resting upon them [and] obtain immediate relief. DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will effect a [p]ositive treatment, and a cure, radical and permanent.

Caution to the Unfortunate.
[illegible] of the San Francisco [illegible] who, with [illegible] wary. Some of the [illegible] are to be found in the [news]papers of San Francisco [illegible] and became [illegible]. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, intelligence office keepers, [etc.] [A st]upid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost nothing, and may save you many regrets. [The] advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus certificates, pretended patients' letters and [illegible] who will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat disease in the [illegible].

Cured at Home.
[Person]s at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon stating the case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing the [fee] in coin in registered letter through the Postoffice, or through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s package, [the medicine] will be forwarded to any part of the [country]. EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Laborers' War.

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., April 8.—About twenty special policemen went on the Lehigh Valley rail road last night as far as Packerton, where they were ordered off. There were a few still in town. The rest are supposed to be walking toward Hazleton.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 8.—Gen. Osborn at Hazleton reports the arrival of troops, including a battery of artillery. Stores and ammunition have been forwarded.

Hon. Mr. French, of Hazleton, has telegraphed Gov. Hartranft that there is not a word of truth in the report of the situation—no incendiarism, personal violence or demonstration—the governor telegraphed him to satisfy the sheriff of these things, and the troops would be withdrawn. The governor added: "It may as well be understood at once that the sheriff will be supported with all the power of the state to protect life and property and enforce obedience to the laws and order must and shall be restored, cost what it may."

Force to Quell the Riots.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—A detachment of 150 soldiers started this morning for Hazleton and a third detachment will leave this afternoon.

Cardinal McCloskey Notified.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Yesterday Count Marefoschi fulfilled the mission entrusted to him by the Pope [of] announcing officially to Archbishop McCloskey [his] elevation to the cardinalate. A number of clergy and laity were invited to witness the ceremony, including Rt. Rev. Bishop McCloskey, of Louisville. The Count after presenting his credentials from Cardinal Antonelli written in Italian, read a brief address in Latin, to which the new Cardinal responded in the same language. Monsignor Roncetti, bearer of the Berretta from the Pope, made an address in French, in which he said the elevation of the Archbishop to the cardinalate was no more than a fitting recognition of the position this country rightfully assumes among nations of the world, not merely because of the wonderful movements of commerce, of inventions and of whatever other material progress it has displayed, but also because these things are far from engrossing the minds of this people to the exclusion of interests of the religious and moral order.

Cardinal McCloskey replied in French. The cardinal privately signified his choice of April 22d as the day for receiving the berretta entrusted to Mgr. Roncetti.

The Owen Brothers Story Contradicted.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Dispatches from Sioux City, say a report from Yankton of the return of the three brothers Owen from the Black Hills with specimens of gold is untrue; that the Owen Bros. who are trappers have never been to the Black Hills at all.

Dana's Habeas Corpus Case.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The argument took place today in the U. S. district court in the habeas corpus [case] obtained by Chas. A. Dana, to prevent him from being carried to Washington as a witness in [a] criminal court there. Bartlett, of counsel for Dana, after handing his points to the Judge [said] before he began his argument, read a subpoena ordering Dana to appear before the criminal court on the 29th of March to testify in behalf of the U. S. and said it does not state what year Dana is to appear before the court. Our view of it is, he is to appear on the 29th of March any year he sees fit, and he had selected the 29th of March succeeding the 4th of March after our next Presidential election, as he thinks by that time the injuries of [illegible] will have been removed.

Tornado in the West.

[illegible] April 8.—A terrific storm visited [illegible] this evening. Three miles below [illegible] uprooted trees, unroofed houses [illegible] generally. A Mrs. Jones was [illegible] and two daughters seriously hurt. Seven [illegible].

[CINCINNATI], April 8.—The Commercial's special says a terrific tornado swept through Edinburg, Ill., at 4 P. At the latest accounts Miss Porter was dead.

Louisiana.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Congressman Wheeler arrived here this evening en route to New Orleans to aid in carrying out the terms of the Louisiana compromise.

Fire in a Mine.

HAZLETON, Pa., April 8.—The fire in the mine at Stockton is gaining headway and is likely to involve the Company in large loss.

The Labor Troubles.

There are now about 1,200 soldiers in Hazleton and several mining towns near it. Trouble is reported in the Wyoming region; and indications are that the strike will extend until it covers the entire anthracite coal fields.

Pardon of Ingersoll—The Tweed Suits

NEW YORK, April 8.—The recent pardon from the State prison of Ingersoll of the Tweed ring has revived interest in that topic to such an extent that it almost overshadows the Beecher-Tilton trial and the canal ring exposures. Affidavits showing the grounds on which the new proceedings against Tweed, Sweeney, Connolly and others are based are published to-day and everything indicates that the campaign will be conducted vigorously and with a reasonable expectation of success. Attorney General Barlow presents the programme concisely and encouragingly when he says that with the testimony which Ingersoll is in a position to furnish connected with what will be proved by others, according to the statute just enacted permitting suits to be brought for the recovery of the money stolen from local treasurers, in the name of the people. There is no doubt whatever that the sums which have been stolen from the city and county will be recovered and judgment given against all persons who will be shown to have shared in the division of the money.

THE TILTON-BEECHER CASE.

A New Installment of Gush.

NEW YORK, April 8.—After recess to-day Beecher resumed the stand and Evarts showed him a letter which he identified as being received by him and also identified a memorandum on its back showing the date of its reception as having been made by him. Evarts read the letter which was undated and read as follows:

WEDNESDAY.

My Dear Friend: Does your heart bound toward all as it used to? So does mine. I am myself again. I did not dare to tell you till I was sure, but the bird has sung in my heart these four weeks, and he has covenanted with me never again to leave. Spring has come. Because I thought it would gladden you to know this, and not to trouble or embarrass you in any way, I now write. Of course I should like to share with you my joy, but can wait for the beyond. When dear Frank says "I may" once again go to old Plymouth I will thank the dear Father.

The memorandum date on the letter was March 1871, and the witness said no other letter had passed between them since his note to her of the [illegible] of February preceding. He was asked if there was anything in the letter that he recognized then or now as having any special or covert meaning, and replied No. He understood it perfectly then and did now. He was then asked what his understanding of it was.

Fullerton and Beach objected the latter arguing with great earnestness that the meaning of the letter should be left to the jury to decide in the light of the surrounding circumstances, and by its language. And the witness should not be permitted to give its meaning. Judge Neilson finally decided that the question might be asked, and Evarts asked witness if the expressions in this letter referred to any private intelligence between himself and Mrs. Tilton. Witness replied that they did. He was asked what those matters were. Beach objected but the court allowed the question. He replied: There had been former efforts made by Moulton, Tilton and myself to bring about a more wholesome state of feeling in the household. About four weeks had elapsed when I received this letter announcing the change that had taken place. When Moulton returned from the south I took him into my library and talked about the letter indicating a happy state of things existing as the result of this final clearing up effort. Witness did not remember ever answering the letter. He did not know anything about the meaning of the expression in this letter referring to the time when Dear Frank should say she might again go to Plymouth Church. It was something between Frank and herself and he did not remember this long enough. All and did not recollect. Moulton speaking to him about that clause.

At this point Beach inquired with reference to a memorandum which witness was using and Evarts said it was a new memorandum of dates and the same they had offered to show. Beach. Beecher also remarked to Beach that he had also a printed copy of the documents and letters that he had testified to. Beach examined the memorandum, and said it was as he suspected something more than a mere memorandum of dates that there were subjects classified and arranged to suggest the subject matter spoken of under particular heads and he submitted that it was incompetent. The court said it might be too full; it was merely a thing but witness may use it.

Witness attention was then called to a [illegible] [of] his to Mrs. Tilton. He said it was written in the [illegible] and had no relation to Mrs. Tilton's letter to him just read. Evarts read the letter as follows:

The blessings of God rest upon you. Every spark of light and warmth in your [heart] will be a star and a sun in my dwelling. Your note broke like spring upon winter and gave me an inward rebound toward life. No man can ever know or but God through what a dreary wilderness I have wandered. There was no Mount Sinai. There were barren sands. There was the alternation of fiery [heat] and the pillar that marked the pilgrimage of old. If only it might lead to the promised land, or like Moses shall I die on the border? Your hope and courage are like medicine. Should God inspire you to restore and rebuild at home, and while doing it to cheer and sustain one outside of it, another who sorely needs help in heart and spirit, it will prove a life so noble as few are able to live, and in another world the emancipated soul may utter thanks. If it would comfort you in [illegible] then to send me [illegible] or true inwardness the outcome of your under life, it would be safe. [I am] now at home with my sister, and it is permitted to you and will be a retribution to me for your heart's experiences is often as bread from heaven to the hungry. God has enriched your moral nature; may not others partake?

Question.—To what relation between yourself and Mrs. Tilton and her family did that letter relate?

Answer.—To that disturbed condition which Moulton and Tilton and I attempted to restore in order and harmony again to that want of confidence between husband and wife which I thought I had been the occasion of promoting and which I labored considerably to restore, and to encourage her as her pastor as well as her friend to use every endeavor in the power of human nature to restore the bright, particular object of her life.

Witness explained that by the expression true inwardness in his letter to Mrs. Tilton he meant her religious experience as distinguished from her exterior circumstance. By the expression "It will be safe for I am now at home with my sister and it is permitted to you," he simply meant to refer to an understanding which had been agreed upon that there need be no hindrance to their social relations and as to safety he meant that he would keep it secret and would not read it to Moulton. The letter he said was written in 1871, but he could not fix the date nor tell whether it was subsequent to the interview he had with Tilton on the cars at Springfield.

Witness was then shown a letter dated January 29th 1871, beginning "Now may the God of peace" etc., containing a statement that his wife sailed for Havana and Florida on Thursday and by this the witness was able to fix the date of the former letter or nearly so. The writing of this letter was in furtherance of the same line of policy he had spoken of to keep heart and courage in Mrs. Tilton and let her know from time to time that he thought of her and prayed for her. He was going away at the time on a lecture tour and wrote to her partly to let her know that he had called to see her and that she was out. The letter was written soon after the death of Mrs. Tilton's brother and whom Mrs. Tilton had nursed during his last illness.

He was asked if there was any special occasion for the reference to his wife's sailing for Havana. Beach objected and after argument the court directed Evarts to put the question in a different form, and Beecher was asked if in the mention of the date of his wife's departure there was any purpose of referring to Mrs. Tilton's visits to his house. He replied: "None whatever, and that as a matter of fact, she was not at his house thereafter." Witness was shown a note saying: "If I don't see you to-morrow night I will next Friday." He could not tell when it was written. Mrs. Tilton wanted to see him about her mother or some other matter and he dropped this hasty note in reply that he expected to see her Friday night at the lecture, or after it. Witness explained that it was the custom always after the Friday night lectures for such of his people as had little private business with him to gather around him and transact their business.

Witness identified a letter from Mrs. Morse to him dated Oct. 25, 1871 and he was asked if anything passed between him and Mrs. Morse before the letter to which the expression in the letter "Do you know, I think it strange that you should ask me to call you son" refers. Witness explained that Mrs. Morse at a wedding which he attended, was lamenting to him that she had no counsel, no one she could go to, not even her daughter and he said "Take counsel of me as if I were your son." It was simply an expression of kindness and this remark was the origin of the expression she used.

Witness was then questioned with regard to the Woodhull card published in May 1871 and as to a conference held between himself and Moulton or Tilton in reference to it. He could only recall a meeting with Tilton a day or two after the publication in which Tilton gave an account of his visit to Mrs. Woodhull, how as soon as he saw the card which referred to himself and family he got himself up carefully and went to Woodhull to put a stop to the matter, how he introduced himself to her and asked if the card referred to himself and family, that she said it did and that he said to witness he never in his life brought to bear on any human being such an amount of personal influence as he did upon her, and that she promised hereafter not to publish anything of that kind again. He stated to witness that among other arguments he used was that he, like her was a sufferer for proclaiming substantially the same laws of social philosophy and of divorce as she did. This was the only account Tilton ever gave him of his interview with Woodhull on this subject. Evarts read from Tilton's testimony on this matter, and asked witness if he ever told him anything of the kind. He replied that he said nothing of the kind. Evarts read at length from Tilton's testimony on this point and witness positively denied that he ever said a word of it to him and a large portion of it he never heard until he heard it in the court room.

He was then asked what conversations he had with reference to any steps or proceedings taken by Moulton or Tilton or both, with witness knowledge in regard to Mrs. Woodhull. He replied: None whatever. He had nothing to do with that woman except so far as she had intruded herself upon him and so far as he had tried to eulogize of her from Moulton and Tilton. She was never in any way whatever brought into this matter nor did I in any way whatever propose any counsel method mode or machinery or anything else for the use of her. Moulton's declaration that witness agreed to get acquainted with her and put her under some obligation to him to propitiate her was false. In explanation of the conduct they told me they thought the way to deal with her was to lay her under obligations to him and they did ask me on one occasion if I would cooperate and I absolutely refused having anything to do with her. He declared further that he never counseled Woodhull's associations with Mrs. Tilton or Mrs. Moulton who were a world too good for her and never thought of her coming to his house. Witness said the first time he saw Mrs. Woodhull was at Tilton's house in the summer of 1871. One Sunday afternoon he was walking with Moulton in the vicinity of Tilton's house when Moulton proposed to go in. He said Woodhull was going to be there. Beecher at first refused, but yielded to Moulton's urging and on going into the house was escorted to the receiving room by some one and found Mrs. Woodhull there apparently waiting for him and they were together alone. She received him very cordially shaking his hands in both hers, and expressing her pleasure at meeting him.

Beecher objected to repeating the conversation and the court sustained the objection.

Witness then said the interview lasted ten or fifteen minutes and nothing was said in any way about Tilton's troubles. The next time he saw Mrs. Woodhull he met her at a dinner party at Moulton's to which Moulton took him one day after a yacht ride down the bay. The only other time he ever saw her was when she came to get him to preside at her Steinway Hall lecture.

Court adjourned.

NEW YORK, April [8].—After recess the defendant resumed and related the particulars of the interview with Moulton in which the Golden Age slip was introduced. Moulton handed him it asking him to read it and give his opinion. He read it and was perfectly astounded that he should put such an article before him and said "Good heavens, Frank, what do you mean?" He asked what would be the effect of its publication. He replied that the inevitable effect would be to defeat everything that he had been trying to do. The article was a disclosure of the matter, and he asked Moulton if he didn't think so. He replied that he knew [illegible]. This was about the whole conversation. Witness recollected the whole of the [talk] with the Bowen letter which he did not read so carefully as the rest. Witness recalled the fact that during the interview he referred to the charges of Bowen and expressed himself as strongly as a clergyman and Christian could without swearing, but with as intense abjuration. He never at that or any other time with Bowen was one subject of consideration admitted, with or without qualification, any charges contained therein, not one in any manner form or degree. Witness related his connection with the tripartite agreement. The [idea] was first brought to him by Moulton and [illegible] he would be a good thing and in reply to a suggestion of Moulton mentioned Judge [illegible] and Tilton's and Bowen's and both witnesses he would trust. What he had heard about the [illegible] of the matter the result he heard from Moulton [illegible] he came to him to sign. In the whole matter [illegible] simply an obedient actor. It was managed wholly by others.

The witness was [asked] about his knowledge of the Tilton article in the Woodhull press. He said he never saw it nor heard it spoken of [illegible] by [illegible] heard of it in court. He believed Tilton once spoke of the article which he understood Woodhull proposed to publish but [illegible] the [illegible] names of a great many other men and women against whom charges were made. He did he had [any] connection with her in this [illegible] indignation and [illegible] with great dignity [illegible] and [illegible] to witness. Witness didn't tell Tilton he thought he did not wisely in breaking with the woman who was dangerous enough as a friend without making her an enemy. On the contrary he thought he did well to break his connection with her.

Evarts read from Tilton's statement that he acknowledged his relation with Woodhull and said "Before God I say Mr. Beecher is as responsible as [I]." Witness was asked if this was so. He replied: I say before God I am not responsible for it at all.

He was asked [if] [illegible] when he first [illegible] acquaintance with Woodhull. [illegible] first [illegible] of [illegible] Woodhull scandal article was to be published was through a visit to his house of a [illegible] old gentleman about sixty years old, who told him there was an awful thing going to be published and wanted to see if something couldn't be done to stop it. Witness told him he didn't know any way to stop it and that it had better come out. Afterwards he told Moulton of it and he [said] somebody was [illegible] to take himself. Witness denied ever telling Tilton he was the [illegible] by the letter that some [illegible] had been [illegible] on him in the [illegible]. He [was] told in substance of the article by Kinsella and McKelway of the Brooklyn Eagle. The article he had never read. He was selected his reading. He undertook to read one day since this trial began as the lawyers told him he ought to, but he never finished it. He consulted with Kinsella as to the matter, also Moulton, who [illegible] him to treat it contemptuously. He was in favor of this plan from first to last. He first had a conversation with Tilton about it after the latter's return from New Hampshire. Tilton was excited about the denouncement and decided he would denounce it everywhere as an infamous atrocious lie, and taking witness by both hands he enjoined him to do as [illegible] in his (Tilton's) [illegible] falsehood. Witness [illegible] public denial to be signed by himself, Moulton and Tilton. Moulton favored silence, and that was agreed to.

Evarts read from Tilton's testimony the account of the interview with Beecher in which the latter declared the policy of silence in regard to the Woodhull publication should no longer be observed, that the clamor of the church and the public and the press from all sides was too great and in which Beecher suggested a plan [illegible] the Tribune to publish an editorial stating that the publication was based on stories by Bowen two years before, which he publicly disavowed in the tripartite agreement. This would satisfy the public, which would take this true explanation of the story. Witness was asked if anything of the kind ever occurred. He answered that not a word of the statement was true. It was an absolute fiction as far as he was concerned. He was questioned in reference to his effort to induce Tilton to break off with Woodhull. He related the interview with Moulton when he suggested that Tilton could never right himself with good people as long as he kept up his association with those women and ought to cut loose in many ways. Moulton agreed to this and suggested that he write a card for publication repudiating her and her doctrines. Witness made a rough draft of the card, but it was declined. Witness denied that Tilton at this said that he witness knew it was not an unguarded enthusiasm that led him to Woodhull but that he went for the purpose of protecting his family himself and Beecher from the result of her threat to publish. He also denied having said to Moulton after the publication of the Woodhull scandal that he saw no hope for himself since that story was published. He didn't remember how he expressed himself at this interview but didn't say that or anything like it. No stipulation was made by the witness that Moulton shouldn't tell Halliday the facts in the case. He (Moulton) didn't want to tell any one nor did witness. He was shown and identified the letter written by him to Mrs. Tilton about three or four weeks after the publication of the Woodhull scandal. Moulton suggested the writing of a letter of sympathy to her saying that it would be agreeable to her husband and her. He wrote the letter and gave it to Moulton who wasn't satisfied. He found when he saw Moulton again that the expected witness to write a letter of denial to Mrs. Tilton. Witness' interview with Mr. and Mrs. Tilton and Moulton was to plan for publishing a denial by each of them, Tilton and wife and Beecher. At a subsequent interview between Moulton, Tilton and witness when Tilton produced the True Story which Moulton said he had prepared Tilton before beginning the reading of the statement said there was one sentence in it that he couldn't stand. He could stand the whole of it. Tilton began to read the story, and read till he came to the passage in which I was charged with asking Mrs. Tilton to be a wife to me with all that is implied in that term, and he looked up and said "that is the sentence. If you can stand the rest of the document it won't hurt you." I made no reply. I was lying on the bed, I think. He went on reading getting madder and madder and when he had finished I got up and began to walk around but said nothing but finally think he (Moulton) asked what I had to say. [illegible] applauded. Mr. Tilton "It is not for me to say what your shall or what you shall not say but I want you to understand that if you publish that statement, and that sentence in it I will not stand it nor agree to it, and it is ended." I will not have any such statement as that come out and not meet it peremptorily. At that he gathered himself up from the bed, his face flushed and he began to storm very loud on the subject and Moulton took him in hand instantly, and I drew back out of it, and the lion and the tiger had the fight by themselves. It was a good lively discussion in respect to the structure of the whole document and in respect to the insertion of that. Part of the time Moulton was in the ascendancy and part of the time I thought Tilton had the best of it, and it went on so for a considerable period, and ended unsatisfactorily to all three of us. I am persuaded that was the substance of that interview. Witness left them before the discussion ended but it had become quieter. He never saw the paper again nor was it ever brought to his notice by either Moulton or Tilton.

Witness then returned to the interview between himself, Moulton and Mrs. Tilton at Moulton's house when they were each to produce a letter of denial written for publication. Beecher had his in his pocket. When Mrs. Tilton came she was brought to the house by Frank Carpenter. She sat down and Tilton brought her pen, ink and paper and told her to copy a statement he gave her in his hand writing. She asked witness if she should write it. He replied that if they were her sentiments she should copy. She did so and signed. He then asked for Tilton's letter and he replied he hadn't written it yet and had not made up his mind to. Witness then put his letter back in his pocket and said he would wait further developments and this ended the interview. Witness denied the truth of Tilton's testimony in regard to the interview which testimony was read by Evarts and the court adjourned.

A Great Many Negatives.

NEW YORK, April 8.—In the Beecher trial this morning although all the parties were present promptly the proceedings did not commence till fully fifteen minutes after the usual hour; counsel for the defense being in consultation. Beecher resumed and testified. In December 1871 I don't think there was any interview between Tilton and myself about Rev. Dr. Storrs, nor do I remember the conversation about his visit to Storrs when Tilton was reading the True Story and when he prefaced a passage by saying "If you could stand that you could stand it all." I didn't say he might as well state the fact as put it that way. In a subsequent conversation with Moulton I said Tilton was a blockhead if he supposed I would stand that sentence. This was said as a protest. Moulton said something about an interview with Tracy about this matter. We were talking and he dropped that his lawyers had said so and so. I started with surprise and he said he did not intend to carry the case any further without lawyers. He said something of Tracy, but there was no understanding between us that Tracy should be brought into it nor did I propose his name. The understanding was that no lawyer should be brought into our counsels.

Evarts read Moulton's testimony with regard to a conversation he stated he had with witness about employing General Tracy as counsel.

Beecher said nothing of that kind occurred. That is all imagination. Moulton never said to me that he told Tracy that I was guilty of adultery with Elizabeth Tilton and that he (Tracy) said if this was true it must be kept quiet at all hazards. It is absolutely false, said the witness; there is not a word of truth in it. It is false from beginning to end. He never said anything to me about it except what I have stated. He never told me he told Tilton of having informed Gen. Tracy of it. This is entirely false. I never told Moulton I was glad Tilton had assented to this course and that perhaps good would come out of it.

Witness was asked [about] the [illegible] of Johnson's connection with the management of the Christian Union and replied he was recommended by Wilkeson and afterwards engaged. He spoke of it afterwards to Moulton and he seemed [illegible] pleased. Johnson's appointment was of purely professional grounds. Witness never gave any instruction with regard to his treatment of the [illegible]. Never said to Tilton that in his judgment it was better to have somebody in the Christian Union who could handle the scandal. Tilton never suggested Johnson as a proper person to [illegible]. This is a simple lie. Witness never took his counsel in any manner whatever about the employment of Johnson.

Witness gave Moulton $500 in May 1872 [for] conversation with Tilton in which he talked of Tilton's precarious condition financially and that if his friends didn't help him he would have to give up his paper. One evening at Moulton's he (Moulton) showed witness two checks and drafts for $[illegible],000 [illegible]. They were a contribution [illegible] letter from which Moulton [illegible]. This was all the money they could have at present. Moulton brought this in [illegible] with emphasis and said, "That's what I call friendship." The person who [illegible] letter [illegible]. She [illegible]. This check he said was not but the two drafts were for Moulton. He [did] not tell witness Tilton [had] refused to take money saying he was not in [illegible] way of returning it. Witness went home and thought over the matter and afterwards blamed Moulton for not asking him for money. He put $500 and went to Moulton with it. He expressed himself gratified. The following Sunday morning as I was going to church I met Tilton on the opposite corner. I thought walking for me. We went along together talking in an affectionate manner. I don't know if I received the slip of paper on that Sunday morning with the words "grace mercy and peace." I did one Sunday and it on resume it [illegible] in an envelope. The paper was signed "T." This paper was shown witness and identified. The memorandum on back of paper was made by witness, but was not made at the time the paper was received. Witness knew the paper was not sent to him the 16th of June 1873 because he was preaching on or about that day in [Park] street Church, Boston, leaving home the 1st and returning [illegible].

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—In connection with yesterday's fire the following statement shows how the explosion was brought about: I went into Risdon's office with Mr. Clark and Tom Corran to have a talk. I used to work for Mr. Risdon. Mr. Clark went into the office to get cartridges ready for blasting. He took the loose powder off a box filled with powder, put this powder in tin cans with a wooden scoop through the hole about one and a half inches large and had filled one can and placed that on the table, placed two empty cans near a box and commenced filling them. The box with powder was standing on the floor, from which he filled the cans. He then lighted his pipe and sat down on an empty box alongside the powder. He was crossing his legs which jarred the pipe in his mouth from which dropped some fire into the box of powder. He then tried to extinguish the spark with his finger pressing on it when after a moment the powder in the box blazed up; on seeing this I ran out to the distance of about fifty feet when I heard the explosion. He had a number of fuses prepared with caps on the end of them. These were some three or four feet from the can of powder on the table. There were two more cases of powder in the room, also two small tin boxes, which, I think, contained caps standing on the table. There were also some paper cartridges with powder in a box in the room. I only saw one can filled and two commenced on but don't know if there were other cans filled or not. (Signed) GEORGE GREEN.

Green is a blacksmith and had been at work upon rock for Mr. Risdon. His part of the job had been concluded and he simply dropped into Mr. Risdon's office for his pay. The man Corran mentioned by Mr. Green in his statement has not been seen since the explosion. It is feared he has been killed. He was a boatman employed to carry loaded cartridges out to the rock.

Hotel Burned.

MARYSVILLE, April 8.—On last Saturday afternoon between 12 and 1 o'clock a large two-story hotel, together with nearly all its furniture at Moore's or Howcett station twelve miles north of this city on the California Northern Railroad, was destroyed by fire. The fire is supposed to have originated by children burning a large quantity of paper flakes which ascended the chimney and lit on the roof. When first discovered the roof was ablaze and the fire beyond the control of the people who were without fire apparatus of any kind. The house was well furnished and the loss is a severe one for the owner. No insurance, the policy on the property having unfortunately been allowed to expire a few weeks ago. Mr. Wood estimates his loss at $10,000.

War Rumors.

LONDON, April 9, A. M.—The Berlin Post ministerial journal has a leading article saying that recent events unfortunately render it too probable that the present French assembly fearing there will be a republican majority in the next assembly disposed to peace are anxious to precipitate a war of revenge under the dangerous auspices of Marshal MacMahon and the Orleans princes, while a strong body of royalist deputies will be placed in position to profit by a restoration of the monarchy. War accordingly is coming although the clouds gathering on the horizon may yet be dispersed.

The Austrian Conservatives are endeavoring to oust Andrassy from the Cabinet with a view of participating in coming events. The greater part of the upper classes in Italy are ready to join any ally against Germany, considering her and papal attitude hostile to Italian interests yet [illegible] by no means certain that France will be able to procure an Austro-Italian alliance just now. If her endeavors fail the war will probably be delayed but things have reached a pass when the German people should be better acquainted with the realities of the situation. WRANGLING OVER THE LORD'S PRAYER.—Says the Burlington Hawkeye: "There are always two sides to a question and sometimes more," was the remark made by a man the other day as he stepped into the Court room during recess and found the entire counsel in the Curtz will case wrangling over the Lord's Prayer. They each gave a different version of it and finally referred it to the Judge, who in turn shifted the responsibility to the clerk, who went down stairs and got a Bible, and after looking all through the Old Testament for it, gave it up and called in a Sunday School scholar who repeated it, and it should be said developed the startling fact that of the twelve or fifteen lawyers who had entered into the controversy every last one of them had been in the wrong.

A DIVERSITY OF CROPS.

That a diversity of crops is essential to the success and prosperity of the farmer has been rendered very evident by the experience of the past year. Wheat, which has always been the staple product of Oregon, has been so far as profit is concerned rather a poor crop, not that it did not yield well, but owing to the low price received for it farming has not proved as profitable as one could wish or as is usually the case. While this has been the case with wheat other products of the farm, and dairy products, have borne a good price. Oats, barley, potatoes, and all other kinds of produce, wheat excepted have been in great demand, at high prices. Hay has brought a better price, during the past winter, than for years before, and this because our farmers have neglected the hay crop in order to increase the production of wheat. An acre of land properly cultivated, will produce from two to four times as many bushels of potatoes as it will of wheat and yet potatoes are now worth in our market $1.50 per bushel while wheat brings but 60 cents, and so it is with many other products of the farm. Beef and pork command cash at good figures while dairy products of a good quality can scarcely be found in the market. This state of affairs may not again occur in a number of years yet the farmer should not be in a position to let the market have an advantage of him and not he of the market.

Again the farmer should strive to produce the very best of everything, whether it be grain, hay, stock or other products as it costs no more to raise the best than it does to raise the poorest of any given kind, while the extra clean wheat or other grain and the fine blooded animal is worth double the amount which the poorer article will bring. Especially is this true of dairy products, rancid butter and tough dry cheese being a slow sale at any price while a good article is always in demand at a fair price.—Bedrock Democrat.

Butler is doing a magnificent law business here and the rumor is that he will not permanently return to Boston at least until the end of the present administration. LETTER FROM TACOMA.

COAL ON THE BRAIN—TACOMA AGAINST THE WORLD—DOWN ON CHINAMEN—BAD WEATHER AND DANGEROUS TIMES EVERYWHERE ELSE BUT TACOMA LAYS AS SMOOTH AS A MILL POND, OR WORDS TO THAT EFFECT.

NEW TACOMA, April 5, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

If all the gold that is carried in the pockets of people in this vicinity could be collected together it would not be necessary to go to the expense as is contemplated of hauling enough coal from the mines in wagons at a heavy cost to enable a practical test to be made by some steamship of its value as a steam coal. Coal on the brain is what's the matter. Scientific geological terms are becoming household words. Children play with coal specimens, and the aged produce a shining black cube whenever an opportunity offers, and talk as learnedly of dips, spurs, saddles, tertiary, pliocene and other periods, as if Dana, Agassiz and Hugh Miller's works had been their special study for years.

The facts warrant some enthusiasm, for there is no doubt that the late discoveries in the Tacoma valley will have an important influence not only on the future of Tacoma, the natural outlet for the coal, but of the entire coast. A cheap steam generator has been the great want of the Pacific coast, and a great deal of money has been expended in endeavoring to find coal that would take the place of the large imports of Australian, English and Pennsylvania coal. Few persons are aware of the magnitude of this trade or of the large increase of consumption. In 1871 there was received at San Francisco 315,194 tons, in 1874, the amount had increased to 531,947 tons. The same ratio of increase for the next five years would make an enormous trade. The introduction of a superior article of coal, at as low a figure as the poorest quality is now sold for, will greatly stimulate the consumption, and will assist materially in developing the manufacturing interests of the coast.

The Puyallup coal, which was discovered some months ago was found by a man named Llett and it was supposed until recently the vein he had struck was the only one in that neighborhood. A man by the name of Gale bought an interest in the mine, and immediately cut a road to it, and for several months has been hauling coal to this place with ox team, and selling it on the wharf for $21 per ton for blacksmith use for which it is especially adapted, being equal, if not superior, for that purpose, to the celebrated Cumberland coal, the screenings from which sell at Portland for from $22 to $25 per ton.

Within the past few weeks a number of persons have visited the region of the mine, and, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather and the fact that the country was covered with snow, have discovered eleven veins, ranging in thickness from five to seventeen feet, all apparently of the same quality. The coal is bituminous, is a glossy black, and is similar in appearance to the choicest Cumberland. Blacksmiths use it for welding steel, it being free from sulphur. It has been tested at the Portland Gas Works, with the most favorable results, the coke produced being a bright steel gray of the best quality, and the amount of gas and coke being largely in excess of what has ever been produced from the same quantity of Nanaimo coal which, I believe, is the only coal mined on the coast that can be used for that purpose. Specimens have been sent to Philadelphia, and pronounced by experts to be superior to Cumberland. Yielding, as it does, a large percentage of first-class coke, it will, no doubt, be used largely for smelting iron and other minerals.

This coal field, for there is now no doubt that a large field exists, is situated in the Tacoma valley in the Puyallup river, and a railroad of 25 miles, which would pass through a level fertile valley almost the entire distance, would take the coal from the mine to a wharf at this place, where the Great Eastern could come without any difficulty and take in cargo. A road on this route would in a very short time pay expenses from traffic outside of the coal, tapping as it would a splendid farming country and a region rich in choice timber, superior building stone, marble and iron. It would be on the direct route of the Northern Pacific railroad from this place across the mountains, and I think there is little doubt but what a road will be built to and beyond the mines under the Northern Pacific charter within a year. If not there is no doubt that private enterprise will build a road—if not this year, within the near future. I learn also that it is within the probabilities that the same company will build from Kalama to Portland.

No seaboard town can lay claims to commercial importance unless it is the terminus of a steamship as well as a railroad line, and for that reason we have heretofore not done much bragging, but we now expect to assert our claims to unrivalled commercial facilities, as being the only point on the northwest coast where the railroad and steamship meet on salt water, where the largest ship that floats can come without any impediment and discharge her cargo into the cars. This seems like a good joke, coming from Tacoma, but just put it in your scrap-book, and read it in a few years from now, and the joke won't be so apparent. The steamer Los Angeles, which has heretofore been running between Victoria and San Francisco, arrived here on Tuesday last, and will hereafter make regular trips between San Francisco and this place, touching at Victoria for passengers and mails only. I understand that passengers will be carried at the same rates from San Francisco to Portland as is charged by Holladay's boats, which ought to materially increase immigration to Washington and Oregon, as there is no doubt that many persons are deterred from coming farther than San Francisco on account of the magnified danger of the Columbia river bar. The Los Angeles is a very comfortable steamer of about 800 tons burthen, with accommodations for about 175 passengers. She was built in 1865 for the Government, but consuming too much fuel was sold to the present owners who have spent a large amount of money in refitting her and having put in new boilers she now makes good time with a small consumption of fuel.

A portion of the bank near the depot at this place, caved in on Friday night, burying in its descent a cabin occupied by a gang of Chinese section men. One of them was killed and all more or less bruised.

The weather has been unusually rough during the past month. Winter a little more than lingers in the lap of spring. In fact it seems to hold on with as strong a grip as in the middle of winter. Ice has formed half an inch in thickness the last two nights. The heavy storm which passed over the country last week did no damage whatever at this place, except the felling of a large number of trees which blockaded the roads in every direction. Our harbor is so well protected on every side from the wind that it was not disturbed, and the smallest boat could have gone on any portion of it at any time during the storm, which was not the case with any other harbor on the Sound.

MR BRIGHT ON MITCHEL AND HOME RULE.

The following letter has been received by the Rev. T. O'Malley in reply to a note addressed by him to the Right Honorable the member for Birmingham:

LONDON, REFORM CLUB, Feb. 25, 1875.

DEAR SIR—I thank you for your letter and the little book on Home Rule on the Basis of Federalism. I have read the book. Shall I tell you what I think of two Irish plans on this Irish question? The "Mitchel plan" is easy to understand, and if Ireland were unanimous and strong enough it might be attempted and might succeed. It is very simple and under the conditions I have mentioned it is not, or would not be impracticable. But the conditions are wanting and therefore there is this fatal objection to it—that it is impossible, and only men partly mad or wicked will urge Irishmen to attempt it. As to your federation plan—the home rule scheme of which you are evidently proud to be thought the father—it is, in my opinion, quite as impossible as the other, and I must say that it seems to be far more absurd. To look at it only for a moment raises wonder that any man or number of men should imagine or think seriously of such a scheme. How many "home" rulers, how many men of faith are there in Ireland? Certainly not more than a million. If I give you four millions of the disaffected—home rulers repeal ers, Irish republicans or other antagonists of Great Britain—and this is more than you can fairly claim—they will give you only one million of men and of these not one-half have any knowledge of public affairs. And yet you propose, in order to allay the discontent of this part of your population, not only to make a revolution in Ireland but to do the same in England and Wales and in Scotland! In Great Britain nobody wants two Parliaments of Lords and Commons—nobody wants a third Imperial Parliament—and yet, you propose, with a childish simplicity and enthusiasm, to force upon England and Wales and Scotland these additional representative and legislative bodies, in order to apparently justify or to balance the creation and establishment of like arrangements in Ireland! Surely so absurd and monstrous a proposition was never before heard of. You propose that twenty five millions in Great Britain shall, in a manner, turn everything among them—everything to which they are accustomed, and with which, in the main, they are satisfied—upside down, in the hopeless attempt thereby to allay the discontent of a portion of your people never having been able to make a clear statement of its grievances, and being, as you must feel, totally unable to agree in any remedy for them. I do not enter into any examination of the details of your little book, or I might point out many inaccuracies into which you have fallen. I confine myself in this reply to your letter to the main features of the two plans for the regeneration of Ireland. I believe them both to be impossible, but your plan of home rule seems to me eminently childish and absurd.

I must ask you to forgive the plain speaking or writing, of this letter, but I am unwilling to leave you in any doubt of my views even after I have read the little book you have been kind [enough to send me]. Since I have taken any part in public life I have thought myself and have intended to be one of the best friends of Ireland, and I think now that I have never been more so than I am at this moment. I am, very faithfully yours,

JOHN BRIGHT.

OREGON FRUIT.

PORTLAND, April 6, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In the San Francisco Weekly Post of March 11th, (sent to me, I suppose, as a specimen number to solicit patronage,) in an article on the first page headed "Fruit Prospects," there are some statements that I think are erroneous, and I desire through your paper to give my reasons for thinking so.

The writer says "thousands of bushels of peaches, apricots, plums and apples were allowed to rot under the trees, simply because the prices could not pay the expense of picking, boxing and shipping to the city," etc. He also says at the close, that "sun-dried fruit is just as good as that dried by any of the patent processes," and, also, that "it will meet with as ready sale as any in the market." Now, that it is not as good and will not meet with as ready sale as machine dried fruit, is shown, by the market quotations in the San Francisco Chronicle and other papers in that city, to-wit:

DRIED FRUIT.		DRIED FRUIT (Alden Pro.)
Apples	5@6c	Apples	16@18c
Peaches	9@10c	Peaches (pared)	30c
Pears	7@9c	" (unpared)	15c
Pitted Plums	15@16c	Bartlett Pears	45@50c
		Pitted Plums	30c

The above are the average wholesale prices, quoted for the last three months, in those papers, in which any quotations of machine-dried fruits are found, showing I think conclusively that the consumer says that the machine-dried fruit is worth from two to three times as much as the sun-dried fruit.

In a pamphlet recently published in San Francisco on the subject of "Concentrating and Preserving Fruits," the writer says "We are informed by a firm in this city that they recently received an order from New York for one hundred car loads of dried fruit, which order they were unable to fill, not being able to fill one car load, all being consumed on this coast." The author of the pamphlet leaves us to infer that that order was for machine-dried fruit, as it can hardly be possible that all the sun dried fruit of that State is consumed there, and "thousands of bushels of fruit left to rot, under the trees." If sun dried fruit is as good as machine-dried, why was not that large surplus dried in that "sunny land," and put in market, so that fruit dealers could at least partially fill that large order?

That machine-dried fruit is worth twice to three times as much as sun-dried, is shown not only by the market reports of San Francisco, but of New York and Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Chicago. If the quoted prices for sun dried fruit are remunerative to the fruit grower, he will not let his fruit "rot under the trees," but they are not.

Farmers who have tried it tell me that apples cannot be sun-dried for less than twenty cents per bushel, yielding five pounds of dried apples, costing four cents per pound. Now, allow ten cents per bushel for apples, and the sun dried apples cost the producer six cents per pound (the top quotation in San Francisco), showing that sun-drying apples won't pay.

Now if machine-drying apples will pay, why not let us have it, and put the thousands of bushels of surplus fruit in California and Oregon into the hands of consumers, at a profit to both producer and consumer, instead of letting them "rot under the trees."

The author of that article also says, "the California apples are superior to the best that have been sent us from Oregon" &c. I think that is an unjust and uncalled for underrating of Oregon fruit. I find, upon inquiry, that the truth is Oregon apples invariably bring higher prices in San Francisco than California apples because they are superior in solidity, in flavor, in saccharine matter and in keeping. A resident in California, who has had large experience in drying apples by machinery (Alden's process), both in California and in Oregon tells me that the latter are much superior, yielding from one and a half to one and three-fourths of a pound more per bushel of dried or preserved fruit. The author further remarks that "the Oregon fruit growers will have to turn their attention to drying and preserving, something the Oregon farmer dislikes because he has a most sublime contempt for work of every or any description and apples cannot be dried without considerable labor."

That this last is unjust, untrue, uncalled for, is plainly apparent to any one who has traveled through the Wallamet and Columbia river valleys, or who knows how many thousand tons of wheat, flour and other surplus produce has been shipped to the European ports from Portland during the past year. There is a better way to obtain subscribers to the San Francisco Weekly Post here, than by vilifying and underrating Oregon farmers and their products.

The town of Pendleton is improving slowly, but steadily. Byer's flouring mill will soon be completed, a fine building in the business part of town, intended for a restaurant, will be ready for use in a few days. The Methodists are already getting the material on the ground for a church and the Episcopalians are, or soon will be ready to begin work on a church edifice and several residences will soon go up.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 9, 1875.

THE IDAHO TELEGRAPH LINE.

The Bulletin's announcement that the Western Union Telegraph Company's talk of building a telegraph line through Idaho, was all for the purposes of bluff, was rather premature. We are authorized to state that it is the intention of the Western Union Telegraph Company to build a good line through Idaho. The rates by this line will be about one-half what they would be by a local line, which would have to collect the tariffs and repeat messages over several connecting lines to reach destination. The Western Union Company's wires connect with all States and Territories. Even now, a message from Portland to Silver City costs but $3, while a message originating at Silver City costs $3 50. The difference is explained thus: "The Idaho Company forward the message over the Atlantic and Pacific line to San Francisco and deliver it to the Western Union there, instead of transferring the message at Winnemucca, the rate by the Western Union being the same from Winnemucca to Portland as from San Francisco." The parties who have control of the Idaho line stock, would be very glad to get their money back; and we understand a proposition to sell out is even now before the Western Union Company. Platte-Burr probably wants a fat contract to use other people's money in building a poor line, caring nothing for its future. This is characteristic of the man, judging from his reputation in Chicago, as published in the Times of that city. Even should a line be built, messages from this city would have to pass over three different telegraph lines before reaching San Francisco, and to reach any point in the Eastern States perhaps a half-dozen. By the time a connection is made through Idaho by Platte Burr, the Western Union will doubtless have absorbed the Atlantic and Pacific lines, which have always been for sale, and those who put their money in this wild project of Burr's would find they had a line connecting with the Western Union at both ends.

As to high rates, Burr's line can take the palm. From Winnemucca to Silver City, two hundred miles, the tariff is $1 50 for ten words, the same rate the Western Union charge between Portland and San Francisco, eight hundred miles, and we understand a further reduction is proposed within the next year by the Western Union.

ONE DAY'S BOARD AGAIN.

After several days of reflection the Bulletin concluded it was incumbent on it to defend the system that prevails in the police court of keeping every person arrested until the day following the arrest before his case is examined. Before proceeding to notice the argument of the Bulletin, if argument it may be called, it is proper to correct a statement which that paper makes with respect to the motive of the OREGONIAN in calling attention to the subject in the first place. The Bulletin assumes our reference to the matter was prompted by a desire to censure the Police Judge and Chief of Police, or one of those officers. The editor of the Bulletin must have been singularly inattentive in the reading of the article he has undertaken to answer, not to have seen that we expressly stated in that article that the custom we objected to was a custom that prevailed before the present judge took office, and that he only continued it as he found it, and it was not our purpose to reflect upon him or the Chief of Police. We had no object in view in calling attention to the matter except simply the saving of expense to the tax-payers.

The Bulletin's argument against the trial of these offenders on the same day they are arrested is that many of them are cases of arrest for drunkenness, and it would be a mere farce to go through the form of a trial with the defendant stupidly drunk. It might be answered, if we were in need of an argument, that it is nothing but a farce, even after the defendant has got sober, to go through the form of a judicial investigation to ascertain whether or not a man has been drunk, who was too drunk to come into court at the time of his arrest. But, as we said, the other day, if there are cases that are exceptional, and which cannot properly be tried on the day of arrest, make exceptions of them. If the cases of drunkenness are of that class treat them as such. But every case should be tried as soon as possible, and every one that can be disposed of during the business hours of the day of arrest should be so disposed of. No matter how few or how many such there are, every one counts when it comes to paying the expenses of the police department.

But says the Bulletin, most of those who might be tried on the day of arrest, give bonds for their appearance and are discharged from custody; so their keeping costs nothing. This is no answer to our suggestion, first because it does not embrace all the cases that could be disposed of at once, and so long as there are any such cases unnecessarily paid for by the people, so long there is room for reform; and, secondly, because the giving of bonds and the discharge of the defendant do not constitute a reliable guaranty against the city's having to pay a board bill for him. We could point to cases in which the city was charged for the board of prisoners who never were taken inside the jail and never were boarded an hour, or a minute by the Police. They were reported and paid for as prisoners in custody when in fact they were on the streets or at their places of business on bail or parole. The Bulletin thinks the saving in this matter would be but trifling under any circumstances. Perhaps it would: but trifles make up the bulk of the expenses of city, county and State, and whenever one of these trifles can be cut off it should be done.

New York City gives away to its poor $6,000,000 annually, and the commissioners of charities are becoming suspicious that such judicious benevolence breeds paupers as fast as it feeds them.

The Chicago Tribune remarks that so far the civil rights bill seems to have been of advantage to lawyers but to nobody else.

RECLAIMING THE CAMPAGNA.

For about five years the Italian Government has had under consideration the feasibility of reclaiming the Campagna, or Agro Romano. This is a triangular level tract of country lying along the Tiber, with its base resting on the sea, and comprises something like a half million acres. In early times it was the most delightful district in the whole region round about the Eternal City, cultivated like a garden, and dotted all over with pretty villas and handsome country seats. It had also some flourishing towns and cities, besides several fortified castles. But it long since ceased to be inhabited, the inhabitants being driven off by intermittent and remittent fevers, and other forms of malarial diseases. In the day of its prosperity it was no more unhealthful than other parts of the empire. The malarial fevers began to depopulate it in the middle ages, and in a few centuries the process was completed.

There has been much speculation, scientific and unscientific, as to the cause of the change from a salubrious to a sickly state, and though it appears to be generally admitted that it is in consequence of the proximity of several marshes in and adjacent to the plain they fail to agree on any explanation of the fact that these marshes did not have the same effect before. The problem, however, which now engages the attention of the government is how to reclaim it. The New York Tribune's correspondent at Rome, who discusses the subject somewhat at length, and is familiar with the various plans proposed, says the estimate of the most careful engineers of the cost of draining the entire Campagna is only 4,000,000 francs, equivalent to about $800,000. The government, however, adopts no plan and takes no actual steps toward the work of reclamation.

We regret to say the letter from Astoria, which will be found in this paper, was delayed somehow so as to reach us one day later than it should, and then, by an oversight of ours, was allowed to go over another day before finding its way into print. The subject matter, however, is such as will keep. It is never too late, though it were better early, to give the contradiction to statements so unjust and untrue as that which the Bulletin made concerning the good people of Astoria. It is but simple justice to say that no person in distress ever calls on the Astorians in vain for assistance. Anybody who knows them would want no other evidence than such acquaintance to decide that the story of "Mortimer" was a fabrication.

Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, has been indicted for libeling Boss Shepherd, of the Washington "ring," which provokes this from the Chicago Tribune:

It is only a matter of legal form we know, but it seems like awful profanity for the Grand Jury which indicted Whitelaw Reid to speak of him as "a person of an envious, evil and wicked mind, and of a most malicious disposition," while in the same breath approving "the good name, fame, credit and reputation of Alexander R. Shepherd, a good, peaceable and worthy citizen."

A special session of the Louisiana Legislature will convene next Wednesday. The matters to be considered, as mentioned in the proclamation calling the special session, is the carrying out of the Wheeler compromise and the settlement of the State finances.

The legislature of Tennessee, at its late session, authorized the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment exempting manufacturing establishments from taxation for six years.

JUSTICE TO THE PEOPLE OF ASTORIA.

ASTORIA, April 5, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

From the outspoken expressions of unqualified disapprobation among the Astoria subscribers of the Bulletin at the utter recklessness of the reports of that paper in giving publicity to the false and unsupported statements of Mr. Robert Mortimer, the "longshoreman," (if he ever made them?) in respect to the treatment of the captain and crew of the late barkentine Architect, your correspondent fully expected to find in today's issue of that paper a retraction of the miserable falsehoods and calumnies against the humanity of the citizens of Astoria, as contained in the issue of the 2d inst.

As they make no mention of the receipt of any information calling for a retraction, and not willing that the citizens of Astoria should be thus belied, I would state, that Captain J. Mertago has authorized your correspondent, in the presence of witnesses, to deny in every particular the statement of Mr. Robert Mortimer, whoever he may be (for Capt. M says he knows no such man by that name), in reference to any neglect or want of sympathy on the part of the people of Astoria.

Captain M., on his arrival took his men to a good, comfortable hotel, and all their wants were supplied. He himself is well known here. He is a M. M. (which, for the benefit of the Bulletin reporter, means Master Mariner), has traveled in foreign ports, worked and received master's wages before he ever became master of the barkentine Architect. Shortly after his arrival (to your correspondent's certain knowledge, for the offer was made through him) a prominent merchant tendered him anything and everything, he or his crew, might need in the shape of boots, clothing, blankets, or any other necessaries; besides which, as the Captain himself states with much feeling, offers of assistance for all came from a great many other individuals. The truth is, there was no suffering to be relieved after the anxiety and suspense of a night's exposure in the rigging was over and the hunger appeased, which Mr. Mortimer admits was done on the Staubrick. The very next day a portion of the crew of the bark shipped on board the Conflict at the rate of $50 a month with a month's advance, and Mr. Mortimer could have done the same had he so wished, and received $15 a month more than he shipped for on the Architect, if he shipped on her at all. So much for the inhumanity, &c., &c., of the Astorians to shipwrecked mariners.

The Bulletin's statements and denunciations respecting Capt. Wass, and the movements of the tug Astoria, have just about as much truth and reason as the balance of the article. Capt. Wass went out over the bar that morning, because he knew that if he could render any assistance at all with the tug it must be from the outside. When he found he could not, he immediately put the tug about for the north channel and made for the Cape, and in less than 15 minutes after his arrival there, started again with the life-boat, and took it as near to the wreck as he could, so near that he run the tug on the sands, and had to lie there for a long time, till the tide made again. Had any other vessel drifted over the bar and on to the sands during that time it is natural to suppose that the writer of the Bulletin article would have called still more loudly on the pilot commissioners to revoke Capt. Wass' license, because he did not jump overboard and push the tug into deep water, so that he might go to the rescue.

E. C. H.

The Walla Walla Statesman says that a man named Pat. Boyle collected $30 of the citizens on the pretence that it was to be used in burying a dead negro, and decamped with the money; for all of which the citizens have lost what respect they had for Patrick.

LONDON, March 25.—The cotton masters of North Lancashire held a meeting yesterday, and resolved on a general lock-out, unless the operatives of Pickering's mill, in Blackburn, who are now on a strike, return to work unconditionally.

OUR SALEM LETTER.

SALEM, April 7, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The principal event of the week so far has been the grand party given at the Chemeketa House by the Misses Louise and Mollie Smith, of that house. I stated in my last that it was to take place on the 8th when it should have been on the 6th; but at all events it was well attended and enjoyed with a zest that must have been gratifying to the ladies. Dancing and other sources of amusements were enjoyed until 3 o'clock.

Mr. Andrew Henderson, a resident of this city, who has been engaged for some time in blasting hard granite boulders for building purposes, about half a mile south of town, had the misfortune of having his hand badly lacerated and face burned with powder by the explosion of a charge which he was trying to withdraw, as it had not ignited when fired. He walked to town and was attended by a physician who relieved the anxiety of friends by stating that he would be well in a few weeks.

Mr. John Chase, who is engaged as waiter in a restaurant in this city, had the misfortune to burn his hands considerably this morning, but will sustain no serious damage thereby.

The good people of Salem are becoming somewhat interested in the promised theatrical entertainment by the members of Baker and Canby Post, G. A. R., of your city. We hope they will succeed in pleasing the people, and that the pecuniary result will be gratifying to them for their visit. The synopsis of scenery and incidents give promise of a good entertainment.

The different ministers of this city are now engaged in a series of religious meetings, which are held in the different Protestant churches in rotation, which seems to be awakening some interest in this community.

"More rain, more rest," is an old adage, but it should be changed in this country to more rain, more wheat, and if the assertion is true we will have an abundant crop this next harvest, as our regular six feet of water certainly must have fell before now, and probably to make the measure good will continue a few days longer. Well, there is one consolation, if it is not raining it would be doing something else, so what is the difference. Give us rain, if it is wet, every time, instead of the cold "beautiful snow." Comfort, which is rain, I can enjoy, but the vexatious, insinuating and harrassing cold that accompanies snow, is an infliction almost unbearable.

P. S.—Last night about 12 o'clock the dwelling house of Mr. A. H. Whitley was discovered to be burning. The fire alarm quickly aroused the department, but the distance from the engine house allowed the flames to get such a start that the house was destroyed. Considerable of the furniture was saved. It was insured. The family have been absent, so I learn, for two days, and no one was staying about the place.

Mr. R. P. Hawley, who was barking a tree, had the misfortune to cut his foot, but will be all right in a few weeks.

CITY.

DEATH OF A PAINTER.—The Boise City S[tatesman] of April 1st says: We announced sev[eral] weeks ago that Mr. Barhydt's health was [...] poor, and he would leave for California. [...] health proved, however, too feeble for hi[m] travel, and he went to Mr. James Stou[t's] he nursed and taken care of, having had s[...] former acquaintance with Mrs. Stout. He [...] been there about two weeks, and every p[...] ble attention paid to him. No relatives co[uld] have done more. Dr. E. Smith has been [...] attending physician. At first he thou[ght] there was some hope of raising him, but [...] found the disease firmly seated—the resul[t] of poison from paint—Mr. Barhydt having b[een] a painter all his life, and he died on Tuesd[ay.] Mr. Barhydt was an artist of no ordinary ra[nk] and has left paintings in our city that wo[uld] attract attention in any art gallery and [...] name would be inquired for. The scene[...] the Columbia river, with Mount Hood in [...] distance and a scene on the Sacramento ri[ver] will bear a favorable comparison with any [...] have ever seen. Mr. Barhydt was very re[ticent] about his life and friends, and of cou[rse] not much is known here. He told us so[me] time ago that he came from Marysville, C[al-] ifornia, to this place. He has lived in P[ort-] land and other places in Oregon, and, fr[om] papers found, it appears he owns a piec[e of] land in Multnomah county, on which he pa[ys] $35 a year taxes. From a passbook, a che[ck] or two and two or three hundred dollars [in] money, which he had in his wallet, he h[ad] nearly $2,000 in money, mostly in Bank[s in] California. Deceased was employed seve[ral] years ago as carriage painter at the shop of [...] E. Cooper.

METHODIST LITERARY SOCIETY.—A meet[ing] of this society was held on Wednesday eve[n-] ing in the basement of the Taylor str[eet] church. There was a good attendance n[ot-] withstanding the evening's inclemency. M[r.] H. Y. Thompson favored the audience fr[om] time to time with some beautiful instrumen[tal] music. The lecture on "The Blood," by [Dr.] W. H. Watkins, was listened to with mark[ed] attention, and the exhibition through a mic[ro-] scope of the red and white corpuscles of t[he] "life fluid" only served to impress m[ore] deeply upon the minds of his hearers t[he] words of the skillful doctor. At the close [of] the literary exercises a number of perso[ns] were nominated and elected members of t[he] society. The following is a list of the pres[ent] officers, a new secretary having been elec[ted] last evening, vice J. F. Clarke resigned: Pre[si-] dent, W. H. Watkins, M. D.; Vice Presiden[t,] H. Y. Thompson, Mrs. T. A. Barter; Sec[re-] tary, Wallace R. Struble; Treasurer, E. [...] Northrup. The next regular meeting will [be] held on the evening of the first Wednesday [in] May.

Mr. Mulkern is the rep[re-] sentative of the Streator Colony from Illino[is.] He is sent to Oregon for the purpose of sele[ct-] ing several thousand acres of land for a colo[ny] of immigrants. While in Portland W. [...] Halsey, Esq., Vice President of the O. & C. [...] R. Co., volunteered a great deal of informati[on] relative to the products of the State by t[he] exhibition of samples of Oregon wheat, oa[ts,] flax, corn and other products. He also kin[d-] ly extended every facility for traveling on [the] line.

UNIVERSITY PROPERTY.—A corresponden[t of] the P. C. Advocate, writing from Salem, say[s:] "The trustees of the Willamette Univers[ity] at their last monthly session, appointed a co[m-] mittee of five on sale of University prope[rty.] This committee has arranged, through [an] agent, to place upon the market some [...] hundred and fi[...] town lots and several hu[n-] dred acres of land. These lots and lands [...] not disposed of at private sale sooner, will [be] sold at public auction during commenceme[nt] week, in June next, from the 21st to the 25t[h."]

ST. VINCENT'S HOSPITAL.—A large force [of] carpenters, painters, and plasterers are engag[ed] in giving the finishing touches to St. Vincen[t's] Hospital, which will be ready for occupancy [...] early in June. The building presents a ha[nd-] some exterior and the interior arrangeme[nts] are such that for comfort and accommodat[ion] they will be equal to any hospital on the co[ast.]

Mrs. Wri[ght] died on the 2d inst., and was about 56 year[s of] age.

Gearin will deli[ver] the fifth lecture of the course under the a[us-] pices of the Catholic Social Union, this eve[ning] at Good Templar Hall, corner of Alder a[nd] Third streets. His subject will be "The In[flu-] ence of Pursuits and Classic Authors in Fo[rm-] ing and Perfecting our Style."

ELECTED.—At a meeting of the directors [of the] Portland Library association, held on Wed[nes-] day evening, Hon. H. W. Corbett was cho[sen] a member of the board of directors, to fill [the] vacancy occasioned by the removal of L[...] Markfield from the city.

Prof. T. F. Royal, p[rin-] cipal of the academy, will have the direc[tor-] ship of the entertainment. Admission [50] cents.

THE THEATER.—A fair audience was pres[ent] last evening at New Market Theater. "Mo[ns.] Alfonse" and "Handy Andy" were presen[ted] for the second time. To-morrow afternoon a matinee performance will be given, on which occasion "Dombey and Son" will be rendered. For Monday evening, "Black Bettles" and "Blind Beggars" are underlined.

PERSONAL.

Hon. L. O. Sterns, of Baker City, leaves for home this morning, having concluded his business in the U. S. Court to the satisfaction of his clients.

Hon. E. N. Cooke and G. W. Gray, of Salem, left this city on Friday last for a short sojourn east of the Cascade mountains. They expected to spend a few days at least at Hood River, enjoying the rural varieties of that far-famed locality.

THE GERMAN FAIR.

The attendance last evening at the Skating Rink was considerably in excess of the previous evenings. In the regular order of the programme last night was set apart for drawing of the prizes. The lottery was the most exciting event of the fair and consequently augmented the interest and drew hundreds of people. A great degree of good natured excitement prevailed during the drawing of the prizes. The numbers were called off as rapidly as possible, during which time the interest of the spectators and holders of tickets never abated for a moment. At last when the tellers called out "the last prize," the cheers and stamping of feet fairly shook the building. Of course those who were the fortunate winners felt jubilant, and those who failed to draw prizes pocketed their disappointment good naturedly. A short intermission was taken several times during the evening and the Portland band improved the opportunities by discoursing some enlivening strains of music.

TWO THOUSAND PRIZE TICKETS

were issued, and over three hundred prizes given. All the movements connected with the drawing process were in plain view of every person in the room, and were conducted "strictly on the square."

Mrs. Catherine Morrison, an elderly lady who held ticket No. 594, drew the elegant opera cloak which was considered the most valuable prize.

To-day the prizes will be distributed to those who have been the lucky drawers, at the Rink, between the hours of 8 A. M., and 1 P. M. On Monday evening a grand ball will wind up the German Fair, given at the Skating Rink.

We are glad to announce to the Catholics of Milwaukie and vicinity that Mass will be celebrated regularly, hereafter, by the Rev. L. Verhaag, on the third Sunday of every month, commencing on Sunday the 18th inst. Service will begin at 10½ o'clock.

Mrs. B. T. Robinson, of this city, was the winner of the beautiful picture of St. Patrick, raffled on last Saturday night. She has kindly donated it to the St. Vincent de Paul Society, to be placed in one of the parlors of St. Vincent's hospital.

The annual spiritual retreat of the Rev. Clergy of this Archdiocese commenced at the Cathedral in this city on last Tuesday evening, and will last eight days. Among the clergymen from distant portions of the Diocese, we notice the following: Rev. P. F. Gibney, Astoria; Rev. L. B. Demers, Dalles; Rev. G. B. Van Lin, Oregon City; Rev. G. A. Vermiersch, St. Paul; Rev. B. Delorme, St. Louis; Rev. A. J. Croquet, Grand Ronde, and Rev. J. Heinrich, Roseburg.

At the last meeting of the Catholic Library Association, held in their rooms, April 4th, the following motions were adopted: 1. "That hereafter the regular meetings of the society, instead of being quarterly, shall be held on the first Sunday of each month at 2 o'clock P. M. 2. That at each regular meeting, at the call of the roll, all members are required, in answering to their names, to settle with the treasurer for the amount of their indebtedness." The office of librarian being declared vacant, Mr. Ed. Brown was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy.

[From the Advocate.]

REPORTS.

The committee on certificates, to whom was referred the applications of R. Holman and J. L. Burns, for exempt certificates, reported favorably and recommended that certificates be granted. Report adopted.

The same committee to whom was referred the communication of H. Boyd, Secretary of Columbian Co. No. 3, asking for active certificates for five newly elected members, reported adversely to the granting of the same, on the ground that the Secretary had not complied with the law. He had failed to give in the application, the ages, residences, occupations, etc., of the members. The committee recommended that the communication be referred to the Secretary for correction, which was adopted.

The same committee reported favorably and recommended that active certificates be granted to W. F. Gallagher, J. D. Biles, T. A. Clark, John Slavich, Joseph Thompson, Geo. Rogers and Geo. W. Frazer. On motion the report was recommitted to the committee on certificates, on account of some irregularities, with instructions for them to report during the evening.

A report was received from the same committee, in relation to the granting of an active certificate to John Slavich. The committee recommended that the same be granted; also that the communications from other companies, asking for similar certificates, be referred to the respective secretaries for correction. D., which was forwarded some time since. The communication was filed and the Secretary instructed to acknowledge, by a suitable letter, the receipt of the certificate.

SOMETHING NEW.

The new style of promenade photographs. These beautiful pictures are now made at Bosco & Megler's new rooms, Nos. 127 and 129, First street. Call and examine them.

The Spring time has come, and with it new Goods to our enterprising merchants. The styles are much changed in clothing, and the dull times have worked a change in prices too, so much so, that persons with limited means can invest liberally. J. KOHN, opposite National Bank, is among the first to introduce the latest styles from the Eastern markets. He has an immense stock which is well worth looking through. Call and see the new stock.

The observing man must have noted a change in the establishment of BECK & WALDMAN. The last steamer brought them quite a large invoice of Spring Styles, which they are having displayed for the inspection of their numerous customers. They will continue to offer the public the best bargains. As usual the stock of Youth's clothing is varied and parents may find many new things that will be sure to please. Drop in this evening.

DANGEROUS INDIFFERENCE.

If you have a friend troubled with a chronic cough, and who apprehends no danger from it, speak to him. Tell him that every paroxysm is like the sound of a muffled drum beating time to his march to the grave. Advise him to begin forthwith a course of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. The country from ocean to ocean rings with its astounding cures of chronic cough and all complaints of the lungs and throat tending to consumption.

The Best Protection.

The best safeguards against epidemic disease are thorough digestion and firm nerves. It is because they assure the regular performance of the digestive process, and invigorate the nervous system, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are such a sovereign protective against the influences which beget intermittent maladies, and those which directly affect the Stomach and bowels. If the nerves are healthfully tranquil, the assimulation of food perfect, as they are sure to be under the influence of this standard tonic and nervine, malaria may be defied, and if, in the absence of the most reliable of medical safeguards, the system has fallen a prey to disease of an intermittent or remittent type, the Bitters will, if persisted in, eradicate every vestige of the malady. Biliousness, constipation and dyspepsia yield with equal certainty to the operation of this potent vegetable alterative.

About all the wheat is shipped from Harrisburg.

Snow fell to the depth of two inches in and around Baker City on the night of the 2d inst.

Albany's fun-loving people inaugurated roller skating the other day. There was more roll than skate.

School district No 15, on Oak creek, Linn county, voted for a new school house, worth from $1,200 to $1,500.

The Record reports a discovery of a coal mine in Chehalem valley which furnishes a good article of fuel for grates and stoves.

Another clean-up of the Virtue mine, Baker City, was made on the 2d, of eight days' run, making a bar valued at $5,600.

The wolves are working on the poor stock of the Cove, Union county. They have never before been known to be so intimate.

When the steamboat Ohio reached Eugene a few days ago she was visited by a large crowd of the citizens, who hailed her return to that town with gladness.

The Linn county Business Council, P. of H. will convene at the usual hour next Tuesday, in Granger hall, Albany, for the transaction of important business.

E. E. Cooper has concluded an engagement with the Yaquina railroad company, for the immediate prosecution of the survey of the route as chief engineer.

Sheriff Rice, of Linn county, received a dispatch from Douglas county, saying that the body of a man had been found, answering to the description of Wm. Peters, late of Albany. Nothing reliable is known.

Mr. L. F. M. Butler, of Polk county, last week received a painful but not dangerous blow on the leg from an iron hand-spike which he had inserted under the sill of a house that was being moved on runners.

There will be a mass meeting of the citizens at Harrisburg, Saturday the 10th inst., for the purpose of discussing the ways and means of constructing the proposed canal and water ditch from Spore's ferry to Harrisburg.

Over $400 have been subscribed at Oregon City, for the relief of the widow of Samuel Newman, who was drowned at that place a few days ago. This is a handsome indication of the generosity of the people of that city.

The U. S. mail to and from Wallowa has been interrupted by the late snow storms, which were the most severe ever known in that portion of the country, snow falling in many places to the depth of four feet in 24 hours.

A letter from Umatilla county dated March 29th says: The winter here hangs on with the tenacity of grim death. In consequence a large number of stock have passed in their checks, and stock-raisers are wearing countenances somewhat elongated.

At the school election in Albany, Dr. D. M. Jones was chosen director, and A. N. Arnold clerk. A motion prevailed to levy a tax of $2,000, for the purpose of purchasing a half block of ground and erecting thereon a suitable structure for a schoolhouse.

John Martin, of Salem Prairie, informs the Farmer that he has forty acres of wheat growing that he considers the best he ever raised. John says he cultivated the land last year in corn, potatoes, pumpkins, etc., and made enough off it to pay well for his trouble, and the crop this year is actually better than after a summer fallow. He considers that the best way to summer fallow, or rest land and prepare to renew it in wheat.

From the Sentinel: "Not long since J. W. Moxley, the champion 'shootist' of Union county, while hunting in the mountains, ran across a band of twenty deer, and after killing five of them, ran the remaining fifteen over a ridge into a soft snow-drift, where they became hopelessly 'swamped;' though under the circumstances they became so domestic that 'J. W.' ordained them on the spot by going through the process of laying on of hands; he also took a 'discovery claim,' by marking several of them with a 'crop off the left year,' and a 'split in the right'—his (X) mark."

A few weeks ago the Albany Granger published the notice of the death of the little daughter of James Morgan, and gave some remarkable sayings of that departing, yet trusting soul. Those who read the account given at that time, will no doubt remember the child's words of cheer to its grieving mother: "Please mamma, don't cry, for I am going to live with the angels, and will be, oh! so happy. Don't cry mamma, for the angels say you may come too, pretty soon." True to the child's promise, the angel of death has called that mother to meet her prattling babe, and gather round the throne of the great Father of all."

THE VALUE OF GOLD.

There may be standard weight for precious metal,
But deeper meaning it must ever hold:
Thank God, there are some things no law can settle,
And one of these—the real worth of gold!

The stamp of king or crown has common power;
To hold the traffic-value in control.
Our coarser senses note this worth—the lower;
The higher comes from senses of the soul.

This truth we find not in mere warehouse learning—
The value varies with the hands that hold;
The worth depends upon the mode of earning;
And this man's copper equals that man's gold.

With empty heart and forehead lined with scheming,
Men's gain and sorrow have been that man's gain;
But this man's heart, with fine emotions teeming,
Makes rich the gold for which he coins his brain.

But richer still than gold from upright labor—
The only gold that should have standard price—
Is the poor earning of our humble neighbor,
Whose every coin is red with sacrifice.

Mere store of money is not wealth, but rather,
The proof of poverty and need of bread.
Like men themselves is the bright gold they gather;
It may be living, or it may be dead.

It may be filled with love and life and vigor,
To guide the wearer, and to cheer the way;
It may be corpse-like in its weight and rigor,
Bending the bearer to his native clay.

There is no comfort but in outward showing;
In all the servile homage paid to dross;
Better to heart and soul the silent knowing
Our little store has not been gained by loss.

HOW SHE LOST HER $2,000 DIAMOND RING.

And while we are on the chapter of cos dames, let me mention a little incident which created much merriment in a certain set here lately. It appears there is a pretty little creature who had bestowed upon herself the cognomen of Diane de Bagatelle, with whom a well-known young Viscount is madly in love. M'lle Diane is a very romantic young lady, with a taste for the plays and novels of the younger Dumas, and especially for the Dame aux Camelias. So she was not surprised when one day the card of the Count de X., the father of the Viscount in question, was handed to her, and an elegant elderly gentleman, faultlessly dressed, and with the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor at his button-hole, was ushered into her boudoir.

"My son loves mademoiselle," began the Count, without further preface.

"I know it," sighed Diane.

"He has—"

"A sister?" exclaimed the lady, remembering the interview between Marguerite Gautier and the elder Duval.

"No, not a sister, but a cousin—his cousin Blanche, to whom he has been betrothed for years. She pines and weeps, and you, Mademoiselle, you and your fatal charms are the cause."

"Alas!" sighed Diane, feeling herself Doche and Blanche Pierson rolled into one and in real earnest.

"Your sensibility does you honor. Will you break with my son at once and forever?" "And if two hundred thousand francs—"

"Two hundred thousand francs?"

"I will draw you a check at once."

"Sir," exclaimed the lady, "you have not made an appeal to a callous heart! I will make the sacrifice; I will give up Henri. You said, I think, two hundred thousand?"

"I did. Blessings on you, my child!" exclaimed the Count fervently. "Write the letter I shall dictate, and the check shall be yours."

So down Diane sat and penned the following epistle:

"Dear Henri: I love you no more. In fact, I never have loved you. I love another. Farewell forever. DIANE."

The Count took the letter, inspected it carefully, and placed it in his pocket-book, from which he then drew a check for the amount named, which he placed in the lady's eager hands.

"Allow me, my child, to raise to my lips the gentle hand that has just saved my son!" A kiss and a tear fell on the dainty hand together; it was released and the aged nobleman departed. He had not been long gone when M'lle Diane discovered that her diamond ring, which was valued at 10,000 francs, had disappeared from her finger, and further investigation proved that her silver-ware and other articles of value had also vanished. The pretended Count was no other than a swindler of the very worst type. The worst of it was that the scamp actually mailed the letter of M'lle Diane to the Viscount, so that the lady found herself minus an adorer as well as her valuables.—Paris Letter to the Philadelphia Press.

A WILLFUL BRIDE AND AN UNPLEASANT RIDE.

The morning train from the West on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, stops at the Relay House daily for breakfast. Among the passengers on this train recently was a bridal party, the principals of which had attracted not a little attention by their billing and cooing. After refreshing themselves at the breakfast table, the bride and groom went out on the depot platform and looked around. The bride was suddenly seized with a desire to ride to Baltimore on the locomotive; the newly-made husband endeavored by argument to deter her from such a rash proceeding, but he failed most utterly. The newly-made wife, as in most contests where language is power, came off victorious, she having, by her superior volubility succeeded in convincing her husband that it was extremely right and exceedingly proper for a wife to have her own way and ride on a dozen engines if she desired to do so. The lady was placed in the engine cab, and as there was no room for the husband, he was compelled to take a seat in one of the cars, where he remained during the remainder of the journey, in not a very enviable state of mind. The result of the "chin music" that had passed between himself and wife made him unhappy, and he considered it very ominous; so much so, indeed, that all his dreams of connubial felicity were transformed, and he felt in his heart of hearts that in all similar contests during life the superiority of his wife's tongue would carry her to the front with flying colors. While the unhappy husband was meditating on the remarkable change matrimony makes in female humanity the wife was seated in the cab, half blind with flying cinders, covered with ashes and soot, and altogether a more miserable specimen than the newly married woman who had a few minutes before been fortunate enough to tame her husband could not be found. The rattling and jolting of the engine, as it dashed along at the rate of forty miles an hour, shook up the lady so effectually, that before the train reached Mount Clare she became very sick, and the engineer was compelled to carry her into the tender. When the train dashed into Camden Station, the husband jumped off and ran to the locomotive, where he found his willful wife seated recklessly on a lump of coal in the tender. Her eyes were filled with small pieces of cinders, her clothes were begrimed with smoke and soot, and she was sick! The meeting between the husband and wife is said to have been very affectionate, and a carriage having been procured, she was lifted down and out of the tender. The train hands seemed to enjoy the lady's unhappy condition very much, and evidently considered the whole thing a huge joke. The lady was taken to the Eutaw House, and, judging from her condition, she will not want to ride on an open engine for some time to come.—Baltimore American.

Latest Liverpool wheat quotations are 9s. 3d@9s 7d for average California, and 9s 5d@9s 11d for club. A London dispatch of the 7th, which gave no figures, says the markets generally have advanced one shilling, which we presume means per quarter, or about five cents per cental. Dealers here are unadvised of the rise.

The complaints mostly heard in business circles arise from the low price which the products of the soil bring in the principal markets of demand, and especially it is thought that the great staple of wheat in the United States is to play an important part in the anticipated early revival of business. This is more particularly true in what Eastern people call the "Northwest," but it is also thought that on this coast the depressed condition of the breadstuffs market has much to do in weighing down other departments of the trade. It is true that prices are now unusually low even at the slight advance which has recently taken place. Business is dull, but there is nevertheless more than the usual amount of money in the country, much of which is waiting for investment in something that is more legitimate and secure than promissory notes and corporation shares. There are those who believe that the export demand for wheat will be much larger than was anticipated a few months ago. There is no reason to doubt that the advance in the price of this staple to the average rates of the past four or five years would have a very beneficial effect upon the general financial condition of the country.

There comes, however, just at this time, notes of an uneasy feeling in money matters in England, the great consumer of the world's surplus breadstuffs. The constant outflow of gold to France, and the shipment of considerable amounts from London back to this country, make the Bank of England apprehensive of a drain of specie. Still we do not share the apprehensions entertained by some of our contemporaries of an impending financial panic. The very fact of the prevalent anxiety will tend to put British capital on its guard, and thus help to avert a crash.

The Sugar and Coffee Trade.

A few days ago it was announced that San Francisco refineries, in order to "block the game" of importation of sugars from the East, had reduced the prices ½ to ¾ cents per lb. Whether successful in their purpose or not is not stated, but the refineries have again advanced rates to the former figures. Stocks, both here and in San Francisco, are generally large, and trade shows no sign of any unusual activity.

In regard to coffee, there appears to be a great deal of it forced upon the market and prices are weak at quotations, and sales of Costa Rica and Guatemala are occasionally made at even lower figures. The Commercial Herald of the 1st inst. says: "The market at San Francisco, at present, seems to be more or less demoralized, owing to the persistency of holders to sell upon arrival. Our commission merchants seem to forget that the whole Central American crop is forced in upon us all at once, and, in the spring, before the trade has fairly opened, and every receiver—and they are many—seems anxious to be the first to realize and close accounts, hence there is a perfect stampede to sell at once upon arrival, be the condition of the market what it may; consequently, as now, prices are forced down below the cost of importation, yet the limited market passed by us is not such as to warrant any one party in buying up all the many lots offered upon the market, hence prices are forced down to low figures. It is yet a question whether we are to have St. Louis as a buyer this season for our surplus."

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—Nothing has transpired to-day to induce any change in the quotations which were last given. There is one vessel now in the market for a charter, and two or three others due, and it is likely that some inquiry at least will be instituted having reference to furnish cargoes for them. At present quotations are almost nominal at $1 40 per cental.

FLOUR—The market is very firm at $4 50 per bbl. for standard extras, $4@4 25 for good outside brands, and $3 75 for superfine. Receipts are light, owing to the stoppage of a number of mills in the interior on account of the high water and other causes.

OATS—The market has made a sharp advance during the past two or three days and good to choice are quotable at 60@65 cents per bushel. A like upward movement is also noted in the San Francisco markets.

BARLEY—The demand is fair and receipts comparatively small. No change in quotations from last week.

MILL FEED—The scarcity noticed before continues, and there is considerable inquiry, at current rates, for all sorts. We quote the market firm at $18@14 ⅌ ton for bran; $27 50@30 for middlings, chops, etc., and $20@22 50 for shorts.

HAY—The market is fairly supplied at $11@12 ⅌ ton, for good timothy; and $7@7 50 for wild. For the latter the demand is dull.

POTATOES—There is some inquiry for shipping, and advanced rates are ruling. We quote at 75@80 cents ⅌ bushel for choice in sacks.

ONIONS—The market is in fair supply and the demand dull at $1@1 25 ⅌ 100 pounds for choice assorted.

APPLES RIPE—There are but few choice lots offering, and prices are firmer at our quotations last given.

APPLES DRIED—The trade is inactive, but prices are nominally steady at 5c ⅌ lb. in sacks, and 6c in kegs.

BACON—The market is firm at 11@12 cents ⅌ lb. for choice sides; 8@9c for shoulders, and 14@15c for hams. Some increase in receipts are noted over those of preceding week.

LARD—There is a fair demand for good quality in tins and kegs, quotable at 14c ⅌ lb in the former, and 13c in kegs.

EGGS—The market is not at all steady, fluctuating as receipts increase or fall off. Jobbers are selling at 22½c ⅌ dozen to day, but prices may drop before the week closes.

BUTTER—The market is bare of choice lots, and those on full saleable qualities. We quote at 30c per lb for best roll, and 30@35c for common.

CHICKENS—Good lots quotable at $4 50; choice, $4 75@5 per dozen; common, $3 75@4 25.

DRESSED HOGS—The butchers are paying 6@6½ cts ⅌ lb. at which there is no unusual demand.

BEEF CATTLE—The arrivals have been a little better, but choice lots are still scarce and in demand at 5½@6½c ⅌ lb net, on foot.

MUTTON SHEEP—There is a scarcity of choice in the market and butchers are compelled to pay $4@4 50 per head for such; common quotable at [illegible].

HIDES AND FURS—The trade is more active, but prices unchanged, and still quote choice dry 16½c ⅌ lb; green salted, 7c; green, 6½c; calfs, 10@12; elk, 22c ⅌ lb; deer, 18@35c ⅌ lb dried, and 50@70c apiece green; mink skins each, $1@1 50; otter, $2@5; beaver, 75c@$1.

WOOL—Very few transactions are taking place; best grades quotable at 20@22c ⅌ lb; common to fair lots, 16@18c.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system, that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching, and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

Buckingham's Dye,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown, or black at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Boston Herald on Booth.

BOSTON, April 9.—The Herald, after reviewing Booth's creditable career on railroad and in California rings, says it is evident now no party will be formed for operations in 1876 in the event of President Grant's renomination. Should that occur, a leader would be wanted and Booth would stand a fair chance to be the one. He has not yet exhibited his powers in the east where he took his seat last month, and it is clear he must gain his position there by real worth rather than by striking address or personal magnetism. His intellect may lack something of warmth, but it has been logical and tenacious. It is certain he has been [illegible] railroad interests of the Pacific coast found in him a vigilant, active, undaunted opponent and he has won the confidence, if he did not excite the enthusiasm, of his associates and followers.

The Potent Lesson of the Connecticut Election.

BOSTON, April 9.—The Advertiser says of the Connecticut election: "The potent lesson of the result is that the Republican party cannot succeed if it undertake to approve or defend the errors of the national administration, and the name of the President is not a potent rallying cry east or west. If there ever was a design on the part of any to make him the Republican candidate for a third term the Connecticut election is a significant warning that it will not do to try it."

The U. P.'s Troubles Multiply.

CHICAGO, April 9.—A Washington special says the Union Pacific Railroad Company is likely to have another serious subject to consider. There is little doubt that the attorney general is expected by the law to ascertain whether Government will enjoin the payment of dividends by the company to stockholders, as has been announced they will do. It is maintained that the first duty of the Union Pacific Company, after payment of interest on its first mortgage, is to look after the second mortgage. Solicitor of the Treasury Wilson is understood to have been so advised.

[illegible] dead work at the mines will not be interfered with [illegible] doing work. The Governor therefore asks if the sheriff will go to Hazleton at once and investigate the condition of affairs there, and if he is satisfied that peace can be maintained without troops to telegraph the Governor that they can be withdrawn.
